

Eyes on the world-Fly me to Japan!

Tokyo, Japan is one of the famous cities around the world.

When I was living in Tokyo, my hostel was nearby Waseda University.

One day, I spent a morning to visit there and having a wonderful breakfast time in the student-restaurant of Waseda University.

Later, I took a walk in the campus.

I found the building is simple but beautiful.

In that moment, I imagined that I was a student of Waseda.

Kyoto is an old but historic city of Japan.

The street, landscape, architecture in Kyoto was having a culture of history.

There was a river Kamogawa, which is a part of life to resident. Local people always rode their bike along Kamogawa. The most unforgettable thing is that I wore Japan tradition clothes, Yukata, walking on the street. The clothes made me more like a woman because it was difficult to let me act regularly.

The surrounding of Kyoto was clean and quiet. It seemed like I was back to one hundred years ago. And the pace of living was slow but graceful.

Every summer, Kyoto has festival named Gion-matsuri. It attracts lots of visitors to celebrate the holiday. I visited Gion-matsuri and really enjoyed the days in Kyoto.

The next station is Hokkaido. I visited there is in July. So it wasn't cold at all.

The weather there was sunny and wonderful.

The temperature was comfortable. I really want to live in there in summer. Not only the seafood but also the fruit there is fresh and delicious!

I spent an early morning to visit the market.

The fruit, Hami-melon, was so sweet. It was the most delicious one I had ever eaten! The seller was nice so I took a photo with not only her but also Hami-melon.

The sweet of Hami-melon is still in my mouth now. I want to travel there one more time.
