

First day, I visited a place that is Yamagata Ginza. It is a Japanese-style village. Japanese architecture and hot spring are completely preserved on there.

While I walked in the street, it just likes walking in the one hundred years ago in Japan. So I imagined I am a Japanese ronin, and eliminating my fatigue by hot spring.

At night, I enjoyed the delicious Kaiseki in Tsukioka hotel, and watched wonderful dancing show. After the show ended, the dancers taught us how to dance Hanagasa Dance and using the Bamboo hat with dance is interesting. What a wonderful night.

Next day, I visit Sakata-Kankou warehouse. This warehouse supplies a half of rice to Japanese. Its special design can keep the rice in the winter without air conditions. In the warehouse, I also tried to carry a 60 pounds of rice sack. Although the rice sacks are very heavy, people in there can carry them whole day. After the experience of today, I knew Yamagata's people are diligent and hard-working.

Through the trip, I had a better understanding about the Japanese culture. Japan is very beautiful and historical country which helps me broaden my view. If you visit Japan, I believe you will be astonished by the gorgeous landscape, kind people, and historical culture.
